

FIELD WEIGHTING IN TEXT DOCUMENT SEARCHING

Abstract

A field-weighted search combines statistical information for each term across document fields in a suitably weighted fashion. Both field-specific term frequencies and field and document lengths are considered to obtain a field-weighted document weight for each query term. Each field-weighted document weight can then be combined in order to generate a field-weighted document score that is responsive to the overall query.